For years, I've been working with American Eagle XP instruments – and they have always exceeded my expectations. But over the past six months, I've had the privilege of using the latest Glacier Instruments in XP² Technology, and the difference is nothing short of remarkable.

With each use they feel sharp and precise. They remove calculus effortless and pressure-free, and allow me to spend more meaningful time with my patients instead of wasting it on sharpening.

I'm truly grateful to have been selected to test these Instruments during the early development phase – and I can't wait transitioning my kits to this new benchmark in efficiency and ergonomics.
